On récupère dans la vue suivante la $ SESSION

```
presentation.php ×
 index.php
           <?php
           session_start();
           <!DOCTYPE html>
                                                                                                                 presentation.php
                                                                                                  	extcolored{4}	extcolored{4}	extcolored{4}	extcolored{4}	extcolored{4} index.php 	imes
                                                                                                         <?php session_start();</pre>
          <html>
                                                                                                          <!DOCTYPE html>
                <head>
                                                                                                          <html>
                </head>
                                                                                                               <head>
                <body>
                                                                                                               </head>
                       <form action="presentation.php" method="post">
                          Nom :<input type="text" name="nom">
                                                                                                               <body>
                               <input type="submit">
                       </form>
                                                                                                                   </body>
19
20
21
22
                </body>
                                                                                                          </html>
          </html>
```

```
Hello ton nom c'est <?php echo $_SESSION['nom']?>
```